with Alice W. Iglehart, Lecturer

June 9 – 17, 2026

IS THE MUSEUM TRAVEL ALLIANCE NEW TO YOU?

MTA trips offer exclusive cultural experiences to members from over 100 of America's leading museums. These art-filled programs feature all your favorite lecturers from past trips, with the same expert guidance and behind-the-scenes access you have come to expect.

TRIP HIGHLIGHTS

TRAVEL through Ireland and Northern Ireland with longtime Met educator and historic homes scholar Alice W. Iglehart

EXPLORE 19th-century greenhouses and rare plant collections during a director-led tour of Dublin's National Botanic Gardens, followed by a curator-led look at Irish painting and international masterpieces at the National Gallery of Ireland

EXPERIENCE royal garden design and political history at Hillsborough Castle during a private visit to the Northern Ireland residence of His Majesty the King

VISIT the 18th-century Russborough House, one of Ireland's finest Palladian mansions, for a private tour of its Grand Tour-era collections and paintings by Gainsborough and Sargent

MEET a curator for a special look at the 18th-century estate of Powerscourt, exploring its Palladian architecture and sculpted landscape featuring one of Ireland's highest waterfalls

JOIN the Director of Conservation at Trinity College's Old Library in Dublin before public hours for a private viewing of The Book of Kells

WALK through Dublin's Charlemont House, home to the Hugh Lane Gallery, for a curator-led viewing of works by Manet, Monet, and Sean Scully in Ireland's oldest modern art gallery

ENJOY a curator-guided inside look at Northern Ireland's artistic legacy at Belfast's Ulster Museum

TAKE a scenic drive along Northern Ireland's Antrim Coast, stopping at Glenarm Castle, the 17th-century ancestral home of the McDonnell clan, the Earls of Antrim, for private access with staff

ACCOMPANY the owners at Belfast's Ballywalter Park for a private lunch and a tour of their ancestral Italianate palazzo and restored Victorian greenhouses

From June 9 to 17, 2026, join the Museum Travel Alliance on the Emerald Isle for exclusive access to private castles overlooking the raging sea, neoclassical gardens, and historic family collections. From Dublin to Belfast, explore art that shaped Irish identity, walk ancestral lands, and trace Ireland's complex story through its great houses and gardens.

We spoke with Alice W. Iglehart—longtime Met educator, historic homes scholar, and specialist in the visual language of status—about why this journey, inspired in part by her own family's Belfast lineage, invites your participation. To reserve your place, contact the Museum Travel Alliance at Arrangements Abroad at 212-324-1893 or email trips@museumtravelalliance.com.

What drew you to help shape this particular journey through Ireland?

My maternal ancestors were from Belfast, and I've long been drawn to that landscape of green fields, wild coastlines, medieval monastic sites, and prehistoric natural wonders like the Giant's Causeway, a seaside path of 40,000 black basalt columns. To journey along the Antrim Coast is to feel sheer awe—with its ancient metamorphic rock, volcanic basalt flows, glacial valleys, and sea cliffs—and I can't wait to share this experience with guests.

For a historic homes scholar like me, the Emerald Isle is a paradise of architectural preservation. We'll delight in extraordinary access to exquisite ancestral estates and art collected over centuries, including a curator-led tour of Northern Ireland's official royal residence, Hillsborough Castle, and an afternoon guided by the staff at the seaside Glenarm Castle, the 17th-century seat of the Earls of Antrim, one of the British Isles' oldest families.

We will be welcomed by the owners of Mount Stewart, the 19th-century home associated with the Marquesses of Londonderry, and Ballywalter Park, owned by the Dunleaths for 170 years. On an exclusive visit to the 18th-century Russborough House, we'll linger inside one of Ireland's finest Palladian homes and view its private collection featuring masterworks by Thomas Gainsborough, John Singer Sargent, and others.

Ireland's museums are just as rich with extraordinary art. What can guests expect?

In bright, effervescent Dublin, a curator-led tour of the National Gallery of Ireland will bring us close to works by Vermeer and Caravaggio and the best of Irish portraiture and modernism—from Lavery to le Brocq. At the Hugh Lane Gallery, we'll enjoy inside looks at Impressionist paintings and a rare look at Francis Bacon's studio, shipped from London and reassembled. Later, we'll go behind the scenes at Belfast's lesser-known Ulster Museum, with its grand collection by Northern Irish artists who I'm sure will become new favorites.

ACCOMMODATIONS

Drawing Room, Merrion Hotel, Dublin, photo © Merrion Hotel

MERRION HOTEL, DUBLIN

Occupying four restored Georgian townhouses, this five-star haven pairs 18th-century architecture with discreet modern comfort. Guest rooms feature period details and Irish fabrics; the on-site collection of Irish art is one of the largest in private hands. Located steps from St. Stephen's Green and the National Gallery, the hotel includes two restaurants, one with a Michelin star, and a serene central garden.

CULLODEN ESTATE & SPA, BELFAST

Once the official residence of the Bishops of Down, this property stands on twelve wooded acres overlooking Belfast Lough. Its original 19th-century sandstone structure now houses spacious guest rooms, a full-service spa, and Vespers restaurant, known for its seasonal menus. Though just a short drive from Belfast's city center, the property feels secluded, with walking paths, gardens, and views of the lough offering quiet contrast to the city's pace.
